

Workshop with Regional Parliaments

The Future of Europe from a Regional Perspective

REGIOPARL seeks the exchange with political representatives from regional parliaments and assemblies to capture and strengthen the regional perspective in the future of the EU. To foster this exchange, we organize a series of workshops with regional parliaments assemblies in 15 different European regions.

2 to 3 hours

10 to 20 political representatives

All political groups

Adaptable to regional conditions

Aligned to
Chatham House Rules

What is the workshop about?

1. Institutional Architecture

How can the EU's institutional structure be rendered more democratic and responsive to regional needs?

2. Distribution of Competencies

How should responsibilities and decision making powers be distributed between the regional, national, European and global level?

3. Territory and Regions

How does the future of Europe look like with regard to national and regional borders?

What happens to the results?

After each workshop, participants will receive a summary report, which highlights the main lines of discussion. In addition, the results from our workshops feed into:

- + Academic publications
- + Tailored summaries for policy makers
- + Research reports
- + Information sheets for relevant institutional stakeholders
- + Policy Briefs
- + Commentaries on the REGIOPARL Blog
